HIGH LINE NETTER.

Sloop Minerva of Peaks Isl- and Makes Record Share.

FEW FARES AT NEWPORT.

Netters Getting Good Trips Off Cape Elizabeth.

The sloop Minerva, Capt. Randall, of Peak's Island, Maine, is unquestionably high line of the southern netting fleet, Capt. Randall and his two men having shared $700 apiece to date. The craft left Newport Monday with two tons of ice for another fare after which she will return to Peak's Island and take up the business of taking out sailing parties. This is as far as known, the largest share ever made in the southern mackerel netting fishery and establishes a record hard to beat, for a $700 share in less than three months fishing, hampered by bad weather at that, is nothing short of phenomenal.

The sch. Quickstep of Swan's Island, Maine, has also made a good spring's work, the crew sharing $425.

The fare of sch. Golden Hope sold to Fred Bradley at $10 5-8 per barrel. Mr. Bradley also bought the fare of sch. Emerald at the same figure. The trip of sch. Edward A. Perkins, (rimmed) sold to John Pew & Son at $11 per barrel.

Several small fares of mackerel are reported at Newport today.

There were few mackerel landed at Portland on Monday, although it was expected that the fishermen would be able to locate one or two good schools to supply the market yesterday.

Mackerel news seemed to be the leading feature of the water front this morning, says the Portland Express of Saturday, and Commercial wharf was lined on both sides with small boats discharging their fares. There were more than 25 arrivals of mackerel caught off the Cape and off Half Way rock and most of them were big fish. Several weighed three and a half pounds each and there were few small ones among those landed. Saturday is a bad day for good prices but the fishermen received seven cents a pound and fared very well. George Cushing and his son Frank, in the sloop Vigilant, brought in the largest catch, 2900 pounds, for which they received nearly $200.

George Cushing also brought in the first mackerel caught off the harbor. Some of the other catches were Captain Procter, 1000 pounds; Captain Bennett, in the Abbie Morton, 800, and the sloop Chandler R., 900 pounds.

STRUCK THEM SOLID.

Sch. Edna Wallace Hopper Has Big Fare at Boston.

Sch. Agnes E. Downes Has Fine Salt Fare Here.

One of the best mackerel fares of the season is at T wharf, Boston, to-day, sch. Edna Wallace Hopper, Capt. Almon D. Malloch, being there with 200 barrels of salt mackerel and 250 fresh mackerel. The fresh fish sold for 10 cents apiece. It is reported that the fare was secured on the southern part of Georges. As both salt and fresh mackerel are at a big price, Capt. Malloch will make a big stock.

Sch. Agnes E. Downes, Capt. William Wentzel, is at this port this morning from off Block Island with a fine fare of 300 barrels of salt mackerel.

Sch. Frank Butler is here from the No Man's Land ground with 138 barrels of salt mackerel.

Sch. Frank Butler arrived at Provincetown Tuesday from No Man's Land with 137 barrels of salt mackerel. She reports sch. Priscilla Smith getting a good haul on Monday.

Portland fishermen are greatly encouraged by the favorable reports received concerning the mackerel. There now seems to be no doubt that mackerel in large numbers will strike into Casco Bay this year and the fishermen are hopeful of putting in a profitable season's work.

The fare of sch. Hattie M. Graham sold to the Gloucester Mackerel Co. at $11.25 per bbl. rimmed.

The nets began to take mackerel at Grand Tracadie, P. E. I., in May and net fishing has been good, but owing to a cold north-east storm lasting four days the fishermen were unable to get out, and their nets, when reached, were full of mackerel. The mackerel were of good size and run about 200 to the barrel.

Advices from Skibbereen, dated June 6, say that owing to mild weather only a few boats had the temerity to venture to the fishing ground the night previous and those that did were rewarded with poor catches of from 1000 down. All the boats went to sea that evening for the first night that week.
